chart correction for charts printed before May 2011

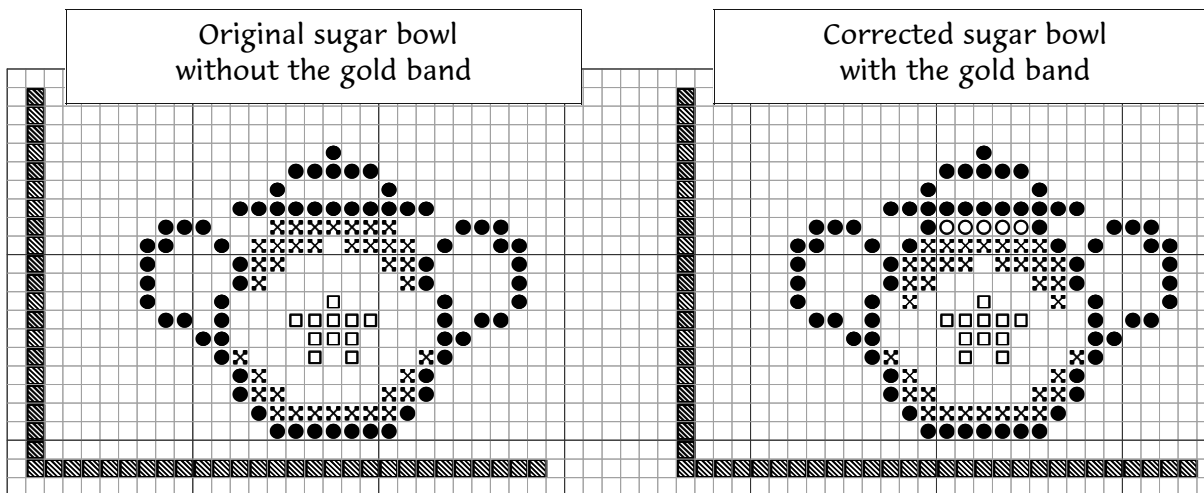

Design correction - a gold band was added to the top of the sugar bowl as shown in the front cover picture

Most people who have already stitched this design before June 2011 did not notice that there is a gold band around the top of the sugar bowl. The cover picture shows the gold band. My original chart does not. I had tried several stitching options for the sugar bowl before I decided on the bowl you see in the picture. The chart was never updated before the design was released to show how I actually stitched the model.

If you have already stitched your Liberty Tea topper please do not restitch the sugar bowls. If you have an original chart, and the Liberty Tea project still to do, then here is another stitching option for you.

Any chart printed after May 2011 has been updated to show the sugar bowl with the gold band. These charts will say "corrected version" on the back cover. I am sorry for any problem my lack of attention to detail may have caused you.
